Moritz Hundhausen named new Head of European Policy

Since 1 November 2022, Moritz Hundhausen has been the new Head of European Policy for the Foundation for Family Businesses and Politics. He represents the interests of family companies at the European level and heads the representative office in Brussels.

In Europe, family businesses are the predominant type of company; they make up 70 to 80 percent of all businesses. Mr Hundhausen's mandate is to ensure that family businesses in the European Union encounter competitive conditions when doing business. Moreover, he has the task of strengthening the exchange between European family companies. Managing Director Stefan Heidbreder said, "We are very pleased that with Mr Hundhausen, we now have an expert contact partner for family businesses and institutions in Brussels so that we can live up to the high professional standards we set for our foundation."

Prior to joining the foundation, Mr Hundhausen, who has a law degree, was Director European Environmental and Natural Resources Policy in the Brussels office of the Association of German Chambers of Commerce and Industry (DIHK). In his previous positions he has specialised in foreign trade law, trade policy and environmental topics.

The Foundation for Family Businesses and Politics is the specialist authority for all questions related to family companies and the central contact partner for political leaders and the media.
